The Academy of Design is a not-for-profit tertiary institution that specialises in art, design and digital media. Bachelor of Design Arts (BDA) graduates receive the equivalent of a four year degree in three years, and become part of a group that includes members of some of the country's top creative studios, Oscar-winning graphic designers, buyers for fashion houses, artists represented by major galleries, arts administrators, as well as freelance professionals. Programs are offered in the areas of Communication Design, Fashion & Costume Design, Filmmaking & Photography, Graphic & Digital Design and Visual Arts. The BDA offers professional placement opportunities in the second year of study, providing valuable industry experience. The Academy also has exchange agreements with top international colleges and universities in Europe and was the first independent Australian tertiary provider accepted as a member of the prestigious global art and design education organisation Cumulus.
