At CSU's School of Communication and Creative Industries we've built a hub for innovative storytellers who want to make a difference. Our school has an emphasis on cross-disciplinary collaboration enabled through a unique balance of practical production and theoretical foundation. Our students have real experiences because our programs are delivered in authentic environments using our state of the art television studios, radio stations, newsrooms, performance theatres, art gallery and our animation and visual effects studio. Students gain a foothold in the employment market when they complete industry internships and other invaluable networking opportunities.
