Whitehouse now offers the Bachelor of Design via a Trimester program, which means that you can gain your degree in two years rather than the traditional three years without any reduction in total face-to-face hours of the course – there are three Study Periods per year (instead of two) and shorter Break Periods. The Bachelor of Design is programmed over 24 hours per week of face-to-face studio, workshop and lecture sessions.

Whitehouse has formal affiliations with international education institutions that provide exchange programs to enrich the learning experience for current students; and partnerships with companies in New York and London that offer paid internships to graduates.
