UCOL—Universal College of Learning—offers a vibrant, high-tech, supportive learning environment in the heart of Palmerston North, in the lower North Island. The Wanganui School of Design emerged in the late 1980s and soon gained an international reputation for experimental work in new media and graphic design. Today, we are a creditable and distinctive voice in design education. The Wanganui School of Design occupies its own multi storey building in central Wanganui. Spacious studio environments attract highly motivated students and staff from many parts of the world. All of us are focused on working through a process of creative collaboration, extending the boundaries of talents towards fulfilling our potential. Computer suites are among the best in the Pacific Rim, with state of the art technology for both multimedia authoring, graphic design exploration and digital imaging. With these facilities, we meet and surpass the high expectations of our industry collaborators. The programme focus is to develop successful and effective solutions, not only to relevant questions of today, but also to those that will fuel and inspire the fields of design that are just around the corner. Our courses are therefore distinctively “hands on”, highly interactive, yet aware of what may happen “tomorrow”. Above all - we care about people. It is important to us that our students are supported personally and professionally throughout their education, as well as being thoroughly prepared for their journey into the real world. This is a unique feature of our programme
